FOREWORD

It gives me immense pleasure to present this foreword for our quarterly magazine, chronicling the vibrant activities and significant milestones of the Embassy of India in Juba during the period of April to June 2025.

For me, personally, this period holds a special significance as I had the distinct honour of presenting my credentials to H.E. Salva Kiir Mayardit, President of the Republic of South Sudan, on May 14, 2025. This formal commencement of my tenure as Ambassador has only strengthened my resolve to foster even closer ties between our two nations across all spheres.

A cornerstone of our cultural outreach this quarter was the enthusiastic participation in various yoga sessions, culminating in the prominent celebration of the International Day of Yoga on June 21st. It was heartening to witness the widespread embrace of this ancient Indian practice, promoting well-being and harmony within the community here in Juba. I also had a great meeting with our ICCR alumni, an interaction that truly highlighted the strong bonds forged through education and cultural exchange.

In the crucial field of education and capacity building, the Embassy continued its dedicated efforts. We were proud to witness the culmination of academic journeys as we handed over MBA degrees to deserving students, marking their achievements and future contributions. Furthermore, we facilitated the dreams of many aspiring South Sudanese professionals by providing travel documents to several nominees for the Indian Technical and Economic Cooperation (ITEC) program, enabling them to pursue specialized training in India.

Our diplomatic engagements remained robust, with productive meetings held with key South Sudanese Ministers. I had the privilege of meeting with the Foreign Minister, the Deputy Foreign Minister, the Minister of Livestock & Fisheries, the Minister of Parliamentary Affairs, the Minister of Labour, and the Minister of Culture, Museums and National Heritage. These discussions were instrumental in exploring new avenues of collaboration and reinforcing existing partnerships across various sectors crucial to the development and prosperity of both our nations.

Beyond these formal engagements, our commitment to community welfare was clearly demonstrated through our active participation in initiatives such as a cleanliness drive, the Blood Donation Day, and the observance of Environment Day. These efforts reflect our shared global responsibilities and our dedication to contributing positively to the local community in Juba.

Our dedicated Indian peacekeepers, serving under UNMISS, continued to excel in their core peacekeeping duties while also making significant contributions to community welfare. Beyond their primary role, they actively engaged with the local population through various initiatives. This included organizing yoga sessions, fostering camaraderie through football matches, and conducting vital veterinary camps, one of which I had the pleasure of attending. Their efforts truly exemplify India's commitment to peace and community development in South Sudan. Similarly, the DMI Sisters also did commendable humanitarian work during the quarter.

Finally, this quarter also saw moments of solemn reflection. We stood in solidarity during condolence meetings for the victims of the tragic Pahalgam terror attack, reaffirming our condemnation of such acts. We also paid our respects by attending the memorial for fallen soldiers at UN Hq in Juba, honouring their sacrifice and dedication under UNMISS.

As we look ahead, the Embassy remains committed to furthering the strong bonds of friendship and cooperation between India and South Sudan. I invite you to delve into the pages that follow and witness the diverse tapestry of our collective efforts.

Warm regards,

(Anil Nautiyal)

Ambassador
